Mongolia Motorcycle Tour 2018

Date: 4th August - 14th August 2018

The Khangai Mountains occupy much of central and north-central area in Mongolia. It has a vast emptiness that links land and sky, and is one of the last few places on the planet where nomadic life is still a living tradition. The terrain is one of mountains and rolling plateaus, a unique and special landscape.

Riding northwest we'll leave the beaten track in our dust as we head towards the Khangai mountain range. Khangai has become a generally used term by Mongolians to describe the entire lush forest-steppe area to the north as opposed to the southern Gobi Desert.

Considering that 40% of the population lives in the capital city of Ulan Bator, or Ulaanbaatar, and almost another 40% are scattered all over Mongolia with their 56 million head of sheep, goats, cattle, horses and camels, there is plenty of room for you to travel through the outback!
